"I know that a private hospital company can be successful by having a culture and strategy that balances the needs of its hospital communities with those of its sponsors," said Dan Moen, chief executive officer, Legacy Hospital Partners, Inc.

Legacy's mission is to continuously improve the quality of healthcare services provided to its patients. This will be achieved by creating a collaborative culture that improves the health of patients by always focusing on their needs; fosters physician participation and involvement in hospital decision making; involves local leaders in the governance of each facility; and recognizes the value and contributions of employees.

Each Legacy hospital will have a local board of trustees to provide advice and consultation with respect to various issues. At least half of the trustees are expected to be physicians from the respective Legacy hospital medical staff while the balance are expected to be comprised of local community leaders.

"Legacy's local hospital boards will be responsible for overseeing healthcare within the community," said James D. Shelton, chairman of the board, Legacy Hospital Partners, Inc.

"We believe that the quality of patient care is enhanced when healthcare decisions are made locally."

"By empowering each local hospital board of trustees to make important decisions, we are building collaboration and accomplishing our goals together," Shelton commented.

Stephen Murray, president and chief executive officer, CCMP Capital, added, "Legacy's management team has more than 160 years of combined experience. They understand what physicians and employees do every day and as a result have a unique perspective that many in the industry do not have."

"We all grew up in the industry, and it's important to us," Shelton said. "We strive every day to build collaboration among the ranks – to work together to create an environment where physicians and staff want to work, which, in turn, creates better care for patients."

"Incredible growth in Bell and the surrounding counties and the overwhelming desire in the local community to have a choice in healthcare providers were two of the factors that drove our decision to partner with LHP Hospital Group in this venture," said Charles J. Barnett, president and CEO of the Seton Family of Hospitals. "We share with LHP a culture that emphasizes person-centered care and quality services, so this is a comfortable fit for Seton."

Seton Medical Center Harker Heights will be located on the south side of the highway at 860 West Central Texas Expressway, between Knights Way and East Stan Schlueter Loop, just east of the Rosewood Retirement Center.

The hospitals campus will also feature a 60,000-square-foot medical office building being developed by Rendina Companies, one of the nation's largest full-service healthcare real estate development firms, in joint ownership with the many physicians who will occupy the building. Services provided in the office building will include family practice, internal medicine, cardiology, general surgery, orthopedic surgery, neurosurgery, plastic surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, gastroenterology, otolaryngology, nephrology, neurology, oncology, rheumatology and urology.

The joint venture's governing board will have equal representation from LHP and Seton, and a local Board of Trustees composed of physicians and community leaders who will oversee day-to-day operating decisions.

"We are proud to join Seton in building this new hospital to serve the health care needs of Bell County and the surrounding area," Dan Moen, CEO, said. "The hospital will feature a full-service emergency department plus acute-care services including women's services, obstetrics, cardiology, surgery, oncology, neurosurgery, orthopedics, imaging and diagnostic services, general medical and surgical services, and intensive and critical care."

Jeffery Kroll, MD, president of the King's Daughters Clinic, stated, "All of us at King's Daughters Clinic are very excited about the association of LHP and Seton. Our commitment stands as strong as ever to offer the highest quality of health care with respect and dignity for each person. The presence of a brand new, state-of-the-art hospital for our patients that require advanced hospital care is most welcome news. We look forward to continued cooperation with LHP and Seton to bring a choice in health care to the people of Bell and surrounding counties."

Charles Day, MD, president of Killeen Investment Partners, commented, "Support for this project is overwhelming among local private practitioners. LHP has involved the medical community since the project's inception, and we look forward to continued participation after construction is complete. Quality medical care will be enhanced for our patients by having a choice of possible options."

Joan Howell, chairperson of local advocacy group Citizens Against the Health Care Monopoly added, "Our coalition welcomes both the choice in healthcare services that Seton Medical Center Harker Heights brings to Central Texas as well as the medical employment opportunities. It is the right thing to do."
